

Editor of the journal Annals of Psychology:

I am enclosing the manuscript entitled "Parental control in interpersonal acceptance-rejection theory: a study with a Spanish sample using Parents' Version of Parental Acceptation-Rejection/Control Questionnaire" whose authors are Carmen – María Fernández – García, Carmen Rodríguez – Menéndez & José – Vicente Peña – Calvo, all of them from the University of Oviedo, Asturias, Spain.

The manuscript is about the IPART Theory. The study has been conducted with a sample of Spanish parents to (a) examine whether parental perceived acceptance-rejection was related to parental behavioral control (2) analyze how behavioral control dimension worked in acceptance-rejection theory and (3) examine whether there were differences in the relations obtained between fathers and mothers. We have to conclude that control behavior correlates positively with warmth behaviors. Fathers' and mothers' correlations among these dimensions show that parents can develop certain control behaviors but that they are compatible with affection conducts
