

Cómo citar / How to cite: Curchin, L. A. 2022. Convention or Originality?: The Attributes of Christian Children in Latin Epigraphy. Antigüedad y Cristianismo 39, 63-81. <https://doi.org/10.6018/ayc.524001>

CONVENTION OR ORIGINALITY?: THE ATTRIBUTES OF CHRISTIAN CHILDREN IN LATIN EPIGRAPHY

¿CONVENCIÓN U ORIGINALIDAD?: LOS ATRIBUTOS DE NIÑOS CRISTIANOS EN EPIGRAFÍA LATINA

Leonard A. Curchin

University of Waterloo, Waterloo, Canada

lcurchin@uwaterloo.ca

orcid.org/0000-0001-6735-264X

Recibido: 10-5-2022

Aceptado: 27-6-2022

RESUMEN

The Latin tomb inscriptions of Christian children show surprising variety in the phrases and epithets used to describe the deceased. While some are conventional attributes expressing the innocence or piety of the child, others are more imaginative, original and even unique. The inscriptions record qualities such as smallness of the child; modesty; intelligence; devotion to God. They lament the child's premature death, but foresee its future in heaven. The inscriptions also reflect the grief and love of bereaved parents, suggesting genuine emotions.

Palabras clave: Children, Christianity, Emotion, Epithets, Fate, Latin Epigraphy.

ABSTRACT

Las inscripciones funerarias latinas de niños cristianos muestran una variedad sorprendente en las frases y los epítetos utilizados para describir los muertos. Unos son atributos convencionales que expresan la inocencia o la piedad del niño; otros son más imaginativos, más originales, e incluso únicos. Las inscripciones registran cualidades tales como la pequeñez del niño; modestia; inteligencia; devoción a Dios. Se lamenta la muerte prematura del niño, pero se prevé su futuro en el cielo. Las inscripciones reflejan también el dolor y el amor de los padres desolados, y con eso sugieren emociones genuinas.

Keywords: Cristiandad, Destino, Emoción, Epigrafía latina, Epítetos, Niños.

SUMARIO

1. Introduction 2. Identification of the Deceased. 3. Description of the Deceased. 4. The Dedicants 5. Contextualizing the Epithets 6. Epithets and Emotions. 7. Conclusions. Annex: Selected Epitaphs of Christian Children.

1. INTRODUCTION

Children were an important component of early Christian society, as we can see from their frequent mention in the New Testament, patristic literature and canon law (Strange 1996; Nathan 2000, 133-159; Leyerle 2013; Betsworth 2015; Nathan 2021). Early Christian children have indeed been the subject of several books, again relying heavily on textual evidence (Osiek 2003; Bakke 2005; Horn and Martens 2009; Horn and Phenix 2009; MacDonald 2014). Enlightening as these writings are, they mostly deal with Christian children in general, not with specific individuals. A more personal view of actual children might be expected in funerary art, but here again the results are disappointing. While portraits of children are often found on Roman tomb monuments (Hutchinson 1999; Mander 2012), they are rare in Christian contexts. When they do appear, for instance on sarcophagi, they are stylized representations of generic children, rather than actual children drawn from life (Jastrzebowska 1989; Studer-Karlen 2008)¹. More often, the visual language of Christian children's tombstones comprises less personal illustrations. A study of children's funerary plaques in the catacombs of Rome found that the commonest decorations are birds, orantes, toys, or the ubiquitous chi-rho, rather than a portrait of the deceased (Kreiger 2013).

Therefore, our fullest and most reliable source of information on "real" children in early Christian society is neither literature nor art, but the extensive archive of surviving Latin epitaphs. However, there are two reasons why these have not been adequately utilized to shed light on Christian children. One is the sheer mass of material. There are more than 40.000 Christian inscriptions from Rome, and thousands more in Italy and the provinces, making it difficult to isolate only those that mention children². Another reason is the uninformative content of many of these inscriptions, which often contain only the child's name (usually mononymous), age at death, date of burial, and one or more stock formulas such as hic requiescit or in pace. If there is an epithet describing the deceased, it is usually a conventional one such as fidelis or benemerens. Even when a more unusual epithet is used, it can easily be discounted as an exception to the rule, as it pertains only to one child and tells us nothing about children in general. Yet these personalized epithets are precisely what is needed to gain an insight into the memorialized perception of individual children³. Since the purpose of funerary inscriptions was to preserve the memory of the deceased and provide information on their lives (Carroll 2011b, 65), it was important that epithets and other descriptive phrases should give an accurate reflection of the character or attributes of the deceased child.

¹ Children account for only a low percentage of known Christian sarcophagi (Rawson 2003b, 284).

It may be useful to explain the characteristics, provenance and accessibility of the evidence. Latin inscriptions comprise the largest body of Christian epigraphic texts. Christian sepulchral inscriptions, including those of children, are usually carved on a stone slab covering the grave, though occasionally the epitaph appears on a sarcophagus or mosaic. The inscription is often decorated with Christian symbols. It frequently gives the precise age of the deceased in years, months and days, as well as the date of deposition. Most epitaphs are brief, though some include additional content such as a lament, prayer or expression of faith. A few that begin misleadingly with the traditional pagan formula “D(is) M(anibus)” contain other words or symbols indicating that they are in fact Christian. The largest single source of children’s epitaphs is the catacombs of Rome. There are also numerous examples from the remainder of Italy, with Regiones I (Latium-Campania) and X (Venetia-Histria) being by far the most productive. A large body of children’s inscriptions comes from Africa Proconsularis, with smaller quantities from Numidia and the two Mauretaniae. The Gallic, Germanic and Hispanic provinces have also yielded a sizeable tally of children’s epitaphs in Latin, as have Sicily and Sardinia, though there are relatively few from the Danube region. Less than half the epigraphic texts include epithets or attributes, which are the focus of the present article. All of the inscriptions date from the second to the sixth century, though chiefly to the fourth and fifth. The inscriptions from the city of Rome can be found in ICUR, while Latin inscriptions from the entire Roman world (including Rome) are collected in ILCV, subsuming the fruits of local and regional corpora. These inscriptions are also conveniently available online (but without commentary) in the Epigraphik Datenbank Clauss-Slaby⁴.

² There are no surviving epitaphs of Christian children in Raetia, Noricum or Corsica.

³ Some useful remarks on epithets in the pagan and Christian epitaphs in the city of Rome have already been made by Sigismund Nielsen 1997 (dealing with the population as a whole) and Sigismund Nielsen 2019 (dealing specifically with infants).

The present paper will examine the verbal attributes of Christian children in epitaphs from Rome, Italy and the provinces, and what they tell us about the characteristics that were valued in a child. The main topics to be discussed are, first, how to define the age of childhood and how young age at death is emphasized in the inscriptions. We will next look at the epithets and phrases that are used to describe individual children, including not only their personal characteristics but also their religious devotion and their premature decease. Then we will consider how the dedicants (usually parents) are described, with emphasis on love and mourning. Next, we will examine how descriptions of children in Christian epigraphy compare with their pagan counterparts and with descriptions of children in Christian literature, and how they vary from one part of the Empire to another. Then we will discuss the problem of whether the terms of affection applied to children express real emotion or are merely formulaic. Finally we will consider whether the attributes in these inscriptions should be seen as original or merely conventional.

2. IDENTIFICATION OF THE DECEASED

To begin with, we must define what is meant by “children”. Biologically, a child is a human being in the period between birth and puberty, but the end of this period is interpreted variously in different cultures. Roman law allowed girls and boys to marry at ages 12 and 14 respectively, though these were minimum ages and most people married several years later (Saller 1987; Shaw 1987)⁵. The toga of manhood (toga virilis) was given to Roman boys in a ceremony, usually around the age of 15, but in practice anywhere between 13 and 18, depending on when the parents considered him ready (Rawson 2003a, 142). Even among the early Christians there was confusion about the boundaries between infancy, childhood, and adolescence; in one inscription, an 11-year old is called infans (Annex, no. 1), while in another, a 4-year old is adolescens (2)⁶. This is hardly surprising, since infancy, childhood and adolescence are social constructs lacking scientific definition. Any choice of terminal point for childhood is therefore arbitrary. Also, while children may not have changed much biologically since ancient times, socially there is a conspicuous difference between Roman children and those of today, in that many

5 One Christian epitaph (ICUR VII, 19291) records a girl who died at age 15 after 3 years of marriage.

6 Christian inscriptions record lectores as young as 6 (3) and clerici as young as 4 (4).

4 <http://www.manfredclauss.de> children (at least of the lower classes) entered the workforce at a relatively young age (Bradley 1991, 112-116; Sigismund Nielsen 2013, 289-290). According to Horn and Martens (2009, 18), childhood in early Christian times ended for girls around the age of 12-15, and for boys around 17-18. However, even granted that girls may mature faster than boys, this seems an extreme age differential. A more reasonable position is taken by McWilliam (2001, 74), who in a study of children's tombstones from Roman Italy counted only persons who died before age 14⁷. McWilliam's upper limit seems a sensible cutoff point and has been adopted here.

The deceased child is often referred to as infans, puer, puerilla or virgo. A diminutive adjective may be used to emphasize that the child was small⁸. Children as young as 2 are sometimes called dominus or domina (10-14). Some children are celebrated as the first-born or only child⁹. The birth of a 1-year old had been "sought with prayers for many years"¹⁰. In rare instances, epitaphs are set up to babies less than a day old (Carroll 2006, 277). Although Roman literary references (Cic., Tusc., 1,93; Plut., Mor., 612A) claim that young infants should not be mourned, these sources reflect the Stoic attitude of self-restrained aristocrats rather than the outlook of the general populace (Carroll 2011a, 99-100). Even so, pagan tombstones of the very young are woefully scarce. At Rome, for example, despite an undoubtedly high rate of infant mortality, only 0,35% of pagan epitaphs are dedicated to children under the age of 1, though the proportion is somewhat higher in the provinces (Carroll 2018, 208). The Christians, however, believed that the soul was infused into the body at the time of conception. Therefore babies, including those unborn, were entitled to Christian burial¹¹. In parts of the Iberian Peninsula, for instance, deceased babies were buried in amphoras (Pereira and Albuquerque 2018, 102-107). In Egypt, fetuses were carefully wrapped in the same manner as adults and placed in graves on an east-west orientation (Kitat 2021). However, relatively few Christian babies are honoured with funerary inscriptions.

In some cases, two siblings are buried together, e.g., a pair of 5-year old sisters (19); brothers aged 1 and 4 (20); a 1 year old boy and his 3-year old sister (21); an 11-year old boy and his 2-year old sister (22); two brothers aged 8 and 7 (23). An 8-year old girl and her 4-year old brother who died at sea are described as infelicissimis infantibus (24). Unusually, a 9-year old girl was buried with her grandfather (25). In one instance, tragically, sisters aged 6 and 2 died on the same day¹². It is unclear whether these concomitant deaths were caused by disease, accident or violence. Even the timing of a single death could be poignant, as in the case of a 13-year old girl who died on her birthday¹³.

3. DESCRIPTION OF THE DECEASED

The epithets most frequently found in Christian children's tomb inscriptions are dulcissimus, carissimus, benemerens and *innocentissimus*¹⁴; less often, we find amantissimus, incomparabilis and pientissimus. Superlative adjectives are far more common than those in the positive degree. The phrase "of good memory" (bonae memoriae) occurs frequently in some places. These are conventional descriptors, in some cases probably chosen by the stonemason rather than the family. Some other attributes occur rarely,

7 Mander 2012, by contrast, included children up to the age of 16.

8 parvula (5); pitinnus, i.e. pisinnus (6); pisintula (7); infantula (8). A 1-year old girl is called annic(u)la (9).

9 filiæ primæ nat(a)e (15); filio unico (16); unicus matri su(a)e (17).

10 plurimis annis orationibus petitus natus (18).

11 Those who were unbaptized would suffer condemnation, but of the mildest sort, because of original sin: Augustine, De peccatorum meritis, 21 (16).

12 sorores una die obitae sunt (26). An inscription recording the deaths of 3 children in 27 days (27) is possibly Christian.

13 die natali suo (28).

14 On the application of the idealized concept of innocence to Christian children, see Pietri 1997, 1534.

and because of their originality are more likely to reflect individual qualities appropriate to the deceased, at least in the opinion of the dedicant. These include words meaning “most delightful” (iucundissimus: 29), “honey-sweet” (mellitus: 30) and “praiseworthy” (laudabilis: 31-32).

Children of both sexes are praised for their virtues. Sons and daughters are commended for goodness (bonitas)¹⁵. Girls are described as “honorable” (honesta: 38-39), “of innocence and kindness” ([integr]itatis ac benignitatis: 40) and “of wonderful modesty” (mir(a)e pudicitia: 41). A 13-year old girl is an “unsullied maiden” (virgo intaminata: 42)¹⁶. Boys are “of honorable memory” (hon(esta)e mem(oriae): 43), “pure of flesh” (i(n)tegre carnis: 2), “of excellent character” (optimae indolis: 44), or a “lamb without stain” (agnus sine macula: 45-46)¹⁷. Goodness, purity and virtue were highly prized among the early Christians. For instance, Athanasius of Alexandria (fourth century) writes that “a good life and a pure soul and Christian virtue” are necessary if one wishes to understand the word of God¹⁸.

Some children were conspicuous for love or friendship. One girl was “loved by all” (omnibus amata: 48); another was someone “whose friendship everyone desired” (queius amicitiam omnes desiderabant: 49). Intelligence and skill were highly prized. A 7-year old boy, described as “full of intellect and wisdom” (totius ingeniositatis ac sapientiae), studied Greek literature and was self-taught in Latin (50), while a deceased 10-year old was “a bright girl trained in letters” (inlustris puella instructa litteris: 51). A 9-year old girl was a maker of gold cloth (aurinetrix: 52), a surprising occupation in view of Christian writers’ disdain of gold cloth¹⁹. Other children, who died away from their home province, are remembered as ¹⁵ bonus/a (33-35); virgo totius bonitatis (36); anima bona (12); mir(a)e bonitatis (37).

¹⁶ Cf. Hoyo 2016, 53-55.

¹⁷ Cf. dulcis agna (47).

¹⁸ Athanasius, De incarn. 57.

¹⁹ Clement of Alexandria, Paed. 2, 11; Jerome, Ep. 107, 4.

citizens of Gaul, Pannonia, Thrace, Judaea or Africa²⁰.

Religion played a dominant role in Christian life, and it is in this realm that the attributes differ the most from their pagan counterparts (Sigismund Nielsen 2001, 174). Thus children, like adults, are called “servant of God” (Dei/ Domini famula; Dei/Christi servus: 58-59, 70, 78), “adoring Christ” (C(h)risticolus: 60), or “blessed” (beatus/beatissimus: 61-62). The adjective sanctissimus (63) may mean “most pious”, though it is also used in pagan epitaphs to signify moral goodness. One girl “died in Christ” (obit in Chr(ist)o: 64); of other girls it is said, “God has ordered her to be in peace” (Deus iussit in pace fi(er)i: 65) and “May you sleep in the peace of the Lord” (in pace Domini dormias: 10). In some inscriptions, children are identified as a new convert (neofytus/a: 12, 21, 66-68) or a pilgrim (peregrinus: 69-71). When the adjective pius (72) or pientissimus (73-74) is used, it is not always clear whether it means that the child was respectful of its parents, or of God (possibly both). The epithet fidelis “faithful” is particularly common in Africa but also occurs elsewhere. The deceased child is now in heaven (in caelis habetur: 75), abiding in the glory of God (manet in Dei gloria: 57) and among the saints and martyrs²¹. This may reflect in part the saying of Jesus that the kingdom of God belongs to little children (Mark 10:13). Despite the official doctrine that the dead would not be raised until the final Day of Judgment (Acts 17:31), the inscriptions reflect a popular belief that good Christians were admitted to heaven immediately (Foxhall Forbes 2020, 154-155).

Children’s epitaphs sometimes bemoan their premature fate. The child “died suddenly” (subito obita/rapta est: 79, 93), “snatched at an unripe age” (cruda aetate raptus: 44), and is now “irrecoverable” (irreparabilis: 80)²². Alternatively, the child was “undeservedly and cruelly removed by God” (indig(ne) ac cru(diliter) a De(o) sublatum: 81), or “summoned by the angels (accersitus ab angelis: 82). Such expressions, which sometimes seem a little dramatic, emphasize the loss that must have been felt by parents unfairly deprived of children who died before their time. The tragedy of the premature death of children and the sorrow of their bereaved parents was addressed by Christian writers such as John Chrysostom, who consoled parents with the promise of heaven for their innocent offspring (Wang 2019).

²⁰ civi Gall(a)e (53); civis Pan(nonica) (54); e provincia T(h)racia (55); Iudaea (56); nationale Afra (57).

²¹ in pace cum san(c)ts (76); digna inter sanctos (65); sociata m(ar)yribus (77); posita mart[y]riis in gremio (78). On Christian ideas of the afterlife, see Dresken-Weiland 2021.

4. THE DEDICANTS

The persons erecting the epitaph, when specified, are most often pater, mater or parentes (in Gaul, patres)²³. In other cases the dedicant is a frater or soror; less often, caregivers or a grandparent²⁴. In one instance, a baby is commemorated by mater et mam(m)a (85)²⁵. Parents are variously described as grieving (dolentes: 16, 28, 86-88); bitter and unhappy (acerbi et infelicissimi: 89); very dutiful (pientissimi: 90); very loving (amantissimi: 91); very dear (car[issimi]i: 92). A father lamenting his loss is called “mourning” ((m)aestus: 93), a mother “miserable” ([mi]serabilis: 94). An epitaph of a 5-year old boy states that “through his refinement and wisdom he gave his parents everlasting grief” (qui per elegantia et sapientia sua parent[i]bus suis remisit dolore perpetuo: 95), while the remembrance of a 2-year old boy “has brought grief to his parents” (qui rememoratio dolum parentibus demisit: 96)²⁶. Particularly interesting are the epitaphs of 22 Cf. Sigismund Nielsen 1997, 198-202 on premature death in pagan epitaphs.

23 A count of epitaphs of Christian children at Rome found that 99 percent were set up by one or both parents (Sigismund Nielsen 2019, Table 3).

24 nutri[c]lion<e>s (83); pater (e)t avus (84).

25 On mamma and tata in Christian epitaphs, see Stawoska-Jundziłł 2003.

26 On the relationship of remembrance and grief see Hope and Huskinson 2011.

three 6-year old girls. Of one it is said, “you left me and abandoned me alone” (mi reliquisti solaq(u)e me desolasti: 97); of another, “your affection, charm and dearness left me grief and sorrow” (cuius affectus et blandities et caritas qui me dolorem et luctum reliquit: 98); while the death of the third girl “broke her parents’ hearts” (par[en]tibus suis cordo[lium] misit: 99). The death of a child was upsetting, not only because the child was loved, but because such a death violated the natural order, in which children are expected to outlive (and bury) their parents. Although the Church discouraged mourning for loved ones, since they were merely asleep and would be resurrected in Christ (I Thess. 4:13; Cyprian, De mortalitate, 21), this rationalization would have been of little comfort to parents traumatized by the loss of their child. One evidently affluent couple was so upset at the loss of their child that they acquired and preserved a basilica in his honour (18).

5. CONTEXTUALIZING THE EPITHETS

To appreciate the significance of funerary descriptors, it is necessary to view them in their religious, literary and geographic contexts. How do Christian epithets differ from pagan ones? How do Christian descriptions of children compare with those in patristic literature? How do epithets vary from one part of the Empire to another?

If we look at pagan epithets, we can see that they fall into four categories: affective epithets (e.g., carissimus, amantissimus); laudatory epithets (e.g., benemerens, incomparabilis); epithets of character (e.g., dulcissimus, innocentissimus); epithets of virtues (e.g., dignus, pientissimus) (Díaz López 2015, 55). All these types continue to be found in Christian epitaphs, showing that both societies valued many of the same characteristics. However, there are also some differences. First, attributes in Christian inscriptions are often expressed not by a single epithet but by a phrase of two or more words. Second, Christian epitaphs often include words alluding to the piety or devotion of the deceased. Third, Christian inscriptions have their own distinctive, non-pagan vocabulary, not only in verbal expressions of death (dormias, discessit) and burial (depositus), but also in epithets. The use of innovative or rare descriptors such as pisintula, intaminata, integre carnis or optimae indolis enriches the standard funerary repertoire²⁷. The devotional locution Domini famulus is of course confined to Christianity, while the phrase bonae memoriae, though sometimes found in pagan epitaphs, more frequently occurs in Christian contexts²⁸.

Characterizations of children sometimes occur in Christian literature, yet these sources have little relevance to how children are described in the inscriptions. Christian writers are generally more concerned with the upbringing and education of children, and their potential role in the Church, than with individual qualities. Also, patristic texts do not seem noticeably to influence the funerary epigraphy. In fact it is doubtful that most of the families setting up the inscriptions had access to such texts, many of them in Greek rather than Latin, though they may have heard echoes of some of them in church sermons. But a more important point is that the perspectives of the literary sources are not the same as those of the epigraphic sources. For instance, Augustine (Conf. 1, 7, 11) states that the minds of infants, unlike the weakness of their limbs, are far from innocent; yet innocens or innocentissimus is among the commonest adjectives applied to infants in Christian inscriptions. Clement of Alexandria (Paed. 1, 5) expatiates on the simplicity of children, yet this is not a quality as yet documented in children's epitaphs²⁹. John Chrysostom (Hom. in Coloss. 4, 4) describes children as vengeful and tyrannized by vanity, desire, anger and envy; needless to say, these negative traits are not mentioned in sepulchral inscriptions, which are invariably laudatory. A number of other Christian texts describe children as being naturally suited to monastic life³⁰, a qualification unlikely to be mentioned on their tombstones. In short, the attitudes of the Church Fathers towards children bear little relation to the ways children were viewed by their own families.

²⁷ Pisintula (7) and integre carnis (2) are unique. Intaminata (42) and optimae indolis (44) each occur in a pagan epitaph (CIL VI, 5817, 35622).

²⁸ Knott 1956, 75-76.

²⁹ The epithet simplex occurs in the epitaph of an 18-year old (ILCV 1196) and in others where the age of the deceased is unfortunately lost.

The number of children's tombstones with epithets varies greatly from one province to another (and, in Italy, from one regio to another), with some geographic areas being very weakly represented, so that we do not have adequate samples for comparison. None the less, some regional preferences can be detected. For instance, the phrase fidelis in pace is particularly common in Africa Proconsularis, while bonae memoriae is very frequent in Gaul and Sardinia. The adjective innocens occurs often in Africa but is rare in the Hispanic provinces. But all regions offer a variety of different attributes, some of them original or unusual, so that it is sometimes difficult to avoid the conclusion that they were chosen to fit the character or personality of the individual child. Many of the inscriptions cannot be dated, but in any event there is no apparent chronological preference for one epithet over another.

6. EPITHETS AND EMOTIONS

Latin funerary monuments, both pagan and Christian, often contain epithets referring to the deceased, but their significance is debated. Knapp (1992, 391) and Edmondson (2014, 571) see the terms of affection appearing on tombstones as "formulaic" expressions, rather than true indications of family feelings. Shaw (1987, 34) considers the setting up of funerary inscriptions "a distinctly artificial and cultural act" reflecting "social and cultural attitudes to death" rather than true emotion³¹. Kreiger (2013), in an analysis of Christian children's memorials in Rome, does not even use the words "emotion", "feelings" or "affection". Another study (Curchin 1982) offers a different vision, in which epithets were specifically chosen to describe qualities of the deceased (and sometimes the feelings of grieving relatives) and often expressed genuine sentiments. Recent specialized studies have given some support to this view. Sigismund Nielsen (1997, 169-175) argues that no information on an inscription is given haphazardly or without reason, and that although most of the epithets are conventional, they are not used indiscriminantly. Carlsen (2020, 477) concludes that "there were surely considerable emotions and sentiments behind most epitaphs", and that some of the epithets "reflect the strong feelings between the deceased and the commemorator". Even such overworked endearment terms as dulcissimus, amantissimus and carissimus, which may appear redundant since most youngsters are sweet, loving or dear, may nevertheless have reflected the affection felt by bereaved relatives. A parallel can be found in modern obituary notices containing such formulaic epithets as "beloved", "cherished" and "deeply missed": the use of these stereotyped expressions does not negate the likelihood that the deceased was indeed beloved and missed.

³⁰ Leyerle 2013, 568-569.

The epigraphic testimony may corroborate literary sources and other indications of parental grief at the premature loss of a child. Both Seneca (Ep. 99) and Plutarch (Cons. ad uxorem 6) refer to the excessive grief of mothers over their child's death. Fernández Corral (2021, 287) points to the careful layout and grave goods of children's tombs as evidence of the care lavished by parents on their deceased children, and notes that the absence of a tombstone need not mean that parents were insensitive to their child's death. Carroll (2011a, 115) speaks of "the emotional trauma felt when those [children] died too young." However, caution must be exercised in associating epithets with emotion. The choice of an epithet cannot really tell us how much a child was loved or missed, and extravagant expressions of parental grief may or may not be sincere. Also, given the limited rate of literacy among the lower classes, some families may have let the stonemason choose an appropriate wording for the epitaph. In view of this uncertainty, the subjectiveness of the evidence, and the variability of human nature, it is difficult to know which expressions of sentiment should be taken at face value, and which ones are merely ornamental. However, it is important to recognize this duality. It would be as serious a mistake to accept all epithets as true and emotive, as it would be to dismiss them all as formulaic and meaningless. Whether a given epithet is to be understood literally will vary from one inscription to the next. Nevertheless, since most parents would naturally have been devastated by the death of a child, I consider it likely that the affectionate epithets on children's tombstones do reflect genuine sentiments in the majority of cases.

7. CONCLUSIONS

The extensive corpus of Latin epitaphs from Rome and elsewhere provides a revealing perspective on how early Christian children were viewed. The subjects of these inscriptions range in age from tiny infants to youths in their early teens. Some children are praised for their loving nature or admirable qualities, others for their devotion to God or their prospects in the next world. Emphasis may be laid on the child's intelligence, innocence, or purity. Dismay is sometimes expressed at the child's premature demise, or at the sorrow the child's death has occasioned. The setting up of these laudatory epitaphs suggests that these children, who had shown so much promise while alive, were genuinely missed by their grieving parents.

Although the commonest epithets found in these inscriptions are stereotypical expressions, other descriptions are more colourful and personalized, clearly tailored to the individual.

³¹ See also King 2000, 120.

This was important to preserve an authentic memory of the deceased child. Some epithets and phrases are found only once, confirming their originality. In general, the more unusual the epithet, the greater the likelihood that it was chosen specially to suit the character of the child. Moreover, unlike pagan tombstones that were intended to be read by passersby, the numerous Christian epitaphs of Rome were located underground, out of public view. The choice of words was therefore less constrained by societal expectations and could express original and affective remembrances of the departed child. However, there is no scholarly consensus as to whether affectionate epithets should be accepted literally as reflecting emotional responses to the death of a child, or dismissed as merely formulaic. Some epithets are conventional and bland, while others are original and meaningful; yet even the conventional ones, typically stressing that the child is dear, sweet or innocent, may have been purposely chosen by the grieving family as appropriate to the deceased. It is ultimately impossible to divine the motives and emotions of the parents who set up each epitaph. What is clear, though, is the individualism and creativity that is often used in describing these dead children.

ANNEX: SELECTED EPITAPHS OF CHRISTIAN CHILDREN

The following representative samples have been specially chosen to illustrate points made in this paper.

1. ILCV 2734 (Syracusae, Sicilia; undated)
Hic requiescit in p/acea inf(a)n(s) Bonipa/tia qyi yxit in sec/ecylo annys p(lus) m(inus) XI. R/ecesit sub die Kal(endis) Nove(mb)ribus) conss(ulatu) d(omi)n(i) Theodosi A(ugusti).
2. ILCV 1747 = RICG 15, 278 (Vicus Augusti, Gallia Narbonensis; undated) Hic requiescit in pace / bone memoriae adoles/cens / itegre carnis nomine Leu/domari, qui vixit annus / numero IIII et dies VIII / Obiit in Chr(ist)o // XV K(alendas) Ma(rtias?) // sex/sies post con(sulatum) Basili vv(iri) / c(larissimi) CSS cons(ulis).

3. AE 1946, 26a (Ammaedara, Africa Proconsularis; undated)
Iohannes lector / quiebit in pace, vixit / annis sex die(bu)s VIII. / D(e)p(o)s(i)t(u)s su(b) d(ie) Idus Iulias.
4. AE 1975, 922 (Ammaedara, Africa Proconsularis; undated)
Marcinus clericus / requiebit in pace, / bixi(t) annos IIII menses V. / Depositus / est III Id(us) Maias.
5. CIL V, 6589 = ILCV 2740 (Novaria, Gallia Transpadana; AD 519)
D(is) [M(anibus?)]. / Hic requiesci[t in pace] / Augusta parvu[la, quae] / vixit in saecolo a[nno] / uno et me(n)ses X et die(s) / XXIII, et deposeta est sub di(e) / Idus Iulias ind(ictione) XII / Fl(avio) Ehuderico v(iro) c(larissimo) c(onsule).
6. ICUR I, 3678 = ILCV 2713b (Roma; AD 301-400)
Nicephorus / pitinnus, / qui vixsit / annus duo / et dies viginti. / Armacane in pace.
7. ICUR III, 8592 (Roma; AD 301-400)
Filie dulcissime Victorine / innocentii pisintule, / que vixit ann(os) sex m(enses) V / d(ies) III. D(e)p(osita) XVIII K(alendas) Feb(rui)arias) in pace. / Mater Maurentia fecit.
8. CIL XIII, 2413 = ILCV 3128 (Lugdunum, Lugdunensis; undated)
Hic requiescit inf(a)n/tula innox nomene / Elarina, filia Muri, / qui vixit annus III / [...].
9. ICUR VI, 15526 (Roma; AD 326-375)
Ianuaria inf(a)n(s) / defuncta annic/la mesoru(m) VIII zero(m) XXIII.
10. ICUR III, 7819 = ILCV 2288 (Roma; AD 301-350)
Domina dulcisima / Stercoria filia, qui / bixit an(nos) II mens(es) IIII, in / pace Domini dormias.
11. ICUR IV, 10889 = ILCV 3902 (Roma; AD 301-400)

- D(is) M(anibus). / Parentes fiiiaf (= filiae) dulcissime / domiiiae feceruni n(atae) V Idus Mai(as), / que bix(it) (a)n(nos) IIII et m(enses) X et d(ies) VII. Kal(endas) Mar(tias).
12. ICUR VI, 15742 (Roma; AD 326-350)
Domine Bitalio annoru(m) XII / anima bona, cito de se/culo discesset. Domne / Bitalio pie zeses.
13. ICUR IX, 24410 (Roma; AD 291-325)
Domine filie incomparabili Galatiae, / que vicsit annis VI mensibus X dies XXVIII. / Eusebius et Ierentia filiae dulcissime in pace.
14. AE 1975, 279 (Potentia, Regio III; AD 401-500)
Rueo bone / memorie, qui / vixit annis sex / diebus XV. Paren/tes domino filio. // Rueo bonae memo/riae, qui vixit / annis sex die/ bus quindecim. Parenies domi/no eilio dulcissimo.
15. RICG 1, 73 (Augusta Treverorum, Belgica; undated)
Hic quiescit in pace / Ursicina, qui vixit / annos V et mensis / XI et dies III. Elpidius / et Ursula filiae primae na/te posuerunt.
16. ICUR III, 7788 (Roma; AD 301-350)
Sabino filio uni/co ben(e) merenti, / q(ui) vicsit ann(os) XII / et m(enses) V d(ies) VIII, / q(ui) abet deposition(em) / XVI Kal(endas) Septembres. / Parentes dolentes / Sabino in pac.
17. AE 1968, 635 (Ammaedara, Africa Proconsularis; undated)
Faustinus qui / erat uni/cus matri sue / [[vidue]], vixit an(no)s / VIII. R(e)q(uievit) i(n) p(a)c(e) s(u)b d(ie) XII / K(a)l(endas) Se(p)te(m)bres ind(ictione) / VIII.
18. CIL X, 3310 = ILCV 1789 (Puteoli, Regio I; AD 301-430)
C(aius) Nonius Flavianus / plurimis annis orationibus petitus natus, vixit anno uno / m(ensibus) XI. In cuius honorem basilica haec a parentibus adquisita / conjectaquea est. Requievit in pace XVIII Kal(endas) Ian(uarias).
19. CIL XIII, 3868 = RICG 1, 222 (Augusta Treverorum, Belgica; undated)
[Hi]c quiescent [---] / [et] Nonusa so[rores], quae vixerunt] / [a]nnos V et m[e]nsis [---] / [po]su[erunt].
20. AE 2016, 1286 (Sirmium, Pannonia; AD 301-400)
Hic duo innocentes / quiescunt Petrus et / Victorinianus fide/les. vixit Petrus an(no) uno / mense(m) dies VIII, Victori/nianus vixit an(nos) IIII m(enses) VII / dies XV.
21. CIL X, 4492 = ILCV 1491 (Casilinum, Regio I; AD 392)
Hic sunt positi duo / fratres innocen/tes neofiti, qui vixi/runt Dionisius annu(m) / unu(m) menses duo(s), dep(ositus) / pri(die) Kal(endas) Aug(ustas), Marinia/na annis tribus men(sibus) / III, dep(osita) VIII Kal(endas) Noben(bres) / d(omino) [n(ostro)] Eugenio Aug(usto) primi.
22. CIL XIII, 2417 = ILCV 3489 (Lugdunum, Lugdunensis; undated)
Hic eacit germanitas fratris adque / sororis, quorum amabilitas iusta meruit coniuctaq(ue) / sanctae abitationi mora/ri / lecit braevis, eorumq(ue) vita / fuisse dicatur innocentiae. / Mpritud abent apud Deum. / Anima perpetua vita / firmata Maximius, / q(ui) vixit an(nos) XI et m(ensem) et d(iem). / Porcaria vixit an(nos) II et m(enses) VI / et d(iem). Optam(us) vobis fil(i)cissimi / valeatis q(ui) innocentium n/omina memoriam recensites.
23. CIL XI, 802 = ILCV 1494 (Bononia, Regio VIII; AD 394)
B(onae) m(emoriae). / Hic requiescent / duo fratres inno/centes, Constantius / niofitus qui vixsit / annis octo m(ensibus) II d(iebus) VI, / depositus III Id(us) Nob(embres) / cons(ulatu) dd(ominorum) nn(ostrorum) Arcadi / et Honori Augg(ustorum), / Iustus fidelis qui / vixsit annis VII.
24. CIL III, 3107 = ILCV 4360 (Brattia, Dalmatia; AD 201-300)
Infelicissimis infantibus Etilarioni et Revocate fra/tribus, qui vixerunt puella an(nos)

/ p(lus) m(inus) VIII, pue(r) an(nos) p(lus) m(inus) IIII, qui in se i[n] / mare perierunt.
Maximus pater pos(uit).

25. CIL III, 13962 = ILCV 307 (Salona, Dalmatia; AD 435)

Hic requiisct in pace Alvia, quae vixit / annos novem et sep(ulta) e(s)t cum Luciano h(onestae)
m(emoriae) / avo suo, et deposi[t]a est sub d(ie) X Ka[l(endas)] / Decembr(es) dd(ominis) nn(ostris) Th[eo]dosio XV et Pla/cido Valentinia[no II]II p(er)p(etuis) Augg(ustis) [co] n[s(ulibus)].

26. CIL VI, 17633 = ILCV 759 (Roma; undated)

D(is) M(anibus). / Fabiae Urbicae q(uae) ann(os) VI m(enses) III / d(ies) X, et Fabiae Sa[e]berae
q(uae) ann(os) II / m(enses) II d(ies) IX, sorores una die obitae sunt. / Fl(avius) Crescentianus alumni/bus fecit.

27. CIL XII, 2033 = RICG 15, *6 (Vienna, Narbonensis; undated)

Ego pater Vitalinus et mater / Martina scribsimus non gran/dem gloriam sed dolum filio/rum.
Tres filios in diebus XXVII / hic posuimus, Sapaudum filium / qui vixit annos VII et dies
XXVI, / Rusticam filiam qui vixit annos / IIII et dies XX, et Rusticula filia qui / vixit annos III et dies XXXIII.

28. ICUR III, 9140 = ILCV 2806 (Roma; AD 301-400)

Septimia Romana quae vixit annis / XIII. Vita functa est XIII Kal(endas) Octob(res) / die natali suo, virgo. Demetria mater / dolens posuit b(ene) m(erenti) in D(eo).

29. ICUR I, 2323 = ILCV 4666 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Marcellino iu/cundissimo fi/lio Splendoni/us et Marcelli/na fecerunt, qui / vixit ann(is) V et me/nsibus III d(iebus) VIII. / D(e)p(ositus) pri(die) Nonas Marti/[as].

30. ICUR I, 3528 = ILCV 4510a (Roma; AD 301-500)

Gerontio infanti mellitae ac dulcissim[ae], / q(ui) v(ixit) ann(os) II d(ies) IIII h(oras) IX.
Gerontius pater / contra votum.

31. ICUR IV, 12050 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Vibio Felici bone memoriae laudabili puer, qui [v]ix(it) ann(os) VI / m(enses) VI. Dormienti in domino in pace, XI Kal(endas) Aug(ustas).

32. CIL XI, 2534 = ILCV 263 (Clusium, Regio VII; AD 201-300)

D(is) M(anibus). / Aurelio Florentio / laudabili memoria / infas, qui vixit annos / duo menses sex / et dies VI. Bene / merenti paren/tes posuerunt.

33. ICUR I, 1714 = ILCV 1611a (Roma; AD 291-325)

Bono ei innocentii eilio / Pasiori, q(ui) v(i)x(it) an(nos) IIII / m(enses) V d(ies) XXVI. Vitalio / et Marcellina parent(es).

34. ICUR V, 14360 (Roma; AD 301-400)

Bono atque dulcissimo Iovino filio, qui vixit / an(n)is duo(bu)s mensibus septem. D(epositus) IIII Non(as) No(vembre)s. / Parentes bene merenti in pace.

35. ICUR VII, 18653 = ILCV 4188 (Roma; AD 301-400)

Diogenia filiae / bonae, quae vixit / annos sexs m(enses) X. / Diogenes pater infelix.

36. CIL X, 4538 = ILCV 4329a (Roma; undated)

Hic est posita Ursa virgo / totius bonitatis, quae / vixit ann(os) XIII m(enses) V d(ies) V / in pace. H(oc) m(onumentum) s(upra) s(criptum) e(xterum) h(ereditatem) n(on) s(equetur). / In f(ronte) p(edes) XII, in agr(o) p(edes) XII.

37. ICUR IV, 9564 = ILCV 4328 (Roma; AD 376-400)

Mire bonitatis et / totius innocencies / Libera, quae vixit / annos quinque / mensis V. Dep(osita) /
X Kal(endas) Iulias d(omino) n(ostro) / Valnitiniano III / n(umero?) VI.

38. CIL XI, 1724 = ILCV 337 (Florentia, Regio VII; AD 401-600)

- Hic requi/escit in pa/ce Curredia / Iunia h(onesta) p(uella), que / vixit annus / VIIII et dies V. / Deposita sub d(ie) / [---].
39. CIL IX, 2076a-b = ILCV 341a-b (Beneventum, Regio II; undated)
 [Hic re]pu/[escit in p]ac[e Fe]/lic[i]tas honesta / birco, qui bixit in/ter plus et minu/s ann(o)s VI mensis [I?] / dies XXII. Deposit/a V Idus Febru(arias) / XII p(ost) c(onsulatum) Basili v(iri) c(larissimi) i(ndi)ctione prima.
40. ICUR X, 27014 = ILCV 4343a (Roma; AD 301-400)
 [Integr]itatis ac benignitatis Appius / [et --- p]arentes dulcissime filie / [--- quae vi]xit annis VIII me(n)s(e) uno / quescenti in pace.
41. ICUR III, 8738 (Roma; AD 301-400)
 Mire pudice casteq(ue) / compari Aelianeti, / que vix(it) an(nos) X m(enses) VIII d(iem) I.
42. ILCV 1726 (Hispalis, Baetica; undated)
 Marturia vir/go intaminata / vixit ani(s) XIII men(sibus) / V. Recepta in pace pr[i]/die Kal(endas) Ianua[rias] / era [---].
43. AE 1977, 211 (Nola, Regio I; AD 557)
 Hic requiescit i[n pace] / Laurentius ho[n(estae) mem(oriae)] / puer, qui vixit a[nnos de]/cem et menenses plus / minus tres. D(e)p(ositus) IIII Id(us) Mart(ias) / ind(ictione) V, XVI p(ost)
 c(onsulatum) Basili.
44. CIL VIII, 11433 (Sufes, Africa Proconsularis; undated)
 D(is) M(anibus) s(acrum). / Q(uintus) Iulius Cris/pinus signum Ce/lerius puer optimae / indolis, cruda ae/tate raptus. Vixit / annis XIII mens(ibus) / XI dies XII.
45. AE 1981, 373 (Arretium, Regio VII; AD 447)
 Hic quiescat agnus / sine macula Carterius, / qui vixit an(nos) III m(enses) VI et / dies XV.
 Depositus in pace / con(sulatu) Calepi et Artabure III Kal(endas) Ian(uarias).
46. ICUR III, 8922 (Roma; AD 301-400)
 [---] cun Gemellu / [---] quae visit anos III / [et cum] ea agno sine ma/[cula]. Gemellus qui vixit / [anno]s numero VIII.
47. ICUR VII, 19187 (Roma; AD 301-400)
 [--- Phili]ppe dulcis agne in / [pace], vixit an(nos) IIII m(enses) IIII d(ies) [---].
48. CIL V, 1746 = ILCV 4621 (Aquileia, Regio X; undated)
 [---]ianioii[--- paren]/tibus plentis[simis] / omnibus amata [---] / annos IIII d(ies) IXXX / horas IIII in p[ace].
49. ICUR V, 14370 (Roma; AD 326-375)
 Iul(ia) Maria depp(osita) XIII Kal(endas) Sept(embras), / que vixit annos duos mens(es) / septem, queius amicitiam / omnes desidera[ba]nt. Cesquet in pa[ce].
50. ICUR I, 1978 = ILCV 742 (Roma; AD 301-400)
 Dalmatio filio dulcissimo toti/us ingeniositatis ac sapienti/ae puer, quem plenis septem an/nis perfrui patri infelici non licu/it. Qui studens litteras Graecas non / monstratas sibi Latinas adripuit et in / triduo ereptus est rebus humanis III Id(us) Fer(uarias), / natus VIII Kal(endas) Apr(iles). Dalmatius pater fec(it).
51. ILCV 223 = AE 2009, 399 (Verona, Regio X; AD 530-531)
 Hic requiescit / in pace Placidia / inlustris puella / instructa litte/ris, qui vixit ann(os) X / octo et mens(es) XI / et sepulta est / sub d(ie) V Id(us) Octu;br(es) pater p(ost) c(onsulatum) Lampadi / e[t O]res[tis].
52. ICUR IV, 12503 = ILCV 633 (Roma; AD 351-400)
 Viccentia dul/cissima filia / aurinetrix, qae / vixit an(nos) VIIII m(enses) VIIII.
53. ICUR VIII, 22694 = ILCV 4441 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Victore birgini civi Galle, / que vixit annis VIII mesis X / dies XI.

54. CIL VIII, 19866 = ILCV 4456a (Rusicade, Numidia; undated)

[Hi]c requiescit Fl(avia) / Amanda civis Pan(nonica), / vixit anno(s) VIII / IAICTSC[---] / XII[---].

55. ICUR VIII, 23627 (Roma; AD 301-400)

Valerius Dalat[ralis e pro]/vincia Tracia vicu, [--- vixi]/t ann(os) o[cto] m(enses) dece(m) o[---]/olica.

56. CIL II, 1982 = ILCV 4920 (Abdera, Baetica; AD 151-200)

Annia Salo/monula an(ni) I / mens(ium) IIII die(i) I / Iudea.

57. ILCV 3386 (Malaca, Baetica; undated)

Aurelius Iu/lianus na/tionem Af/ram, qui vi/xit ann(os) VI / m(enses) X dies / XI. Manet / in Dei gloria.

58. AE 2003, 1961 (Thagumata, Africa Proconsularis; undated)

[---]ius innocens / [vix]it in pace fidelis men/[ses] XXV, reddit XI K(a)l(endas) Iunias / [---] Dei famulus / [in pa]ce fidelis annis / [--- di]e Kal(endas) Octobres.

59. ICUR II, 6324 (Roma; AD 351-400)

Serbus Dei qui bicsit / annus (d)uo(s) et m(enses) tr(e)s, / beni(merenti) in pace.

60. HEp 2001, 632 (locus incertus, Hispania Citerior; undated)

Ic umatum es[t] / corpus Zacarie / Cristicoli. vix/it tres annos et o/bit s(ub) d(ie) IV C(alendas) No(vembres), Ar/vanio siniente, / Ianuarius in as[t]/ra nill est. / Maxima.

61. ILCV 4828 = Galsterer 2010, 761 (Colonia Claudia Ara Agrippinensium, Germania Inferior; AD 401-530)

Leontius hic iacit fedelis / puer dulcissimus patri pientis/simus matri, qui vixit annus / VII et mensis III et dies VI. In/nocens funere raptus, / beatus mente, felix / et in pace recces/sit.

62. ICUR VIII, 23488 = ILCV 4632 (Roma; AD 391-425)

Beatissimo Bon/o qui v(i)xit annos / IIII et mensis III / et d(ies) XXV. D(e)f(unctus) est / V Kal(endas) Octob(res) et h[o]/ra nona.

63. CIL XI, 323 = ILCV 242a (Ravenna, Regio VIII; AD 401-420)

Fl(avio) Anastasio / sanctissimo filio, / qui vixit ann(o)s VII m(enses) III. / Fl(avius) Felix ex pre(fecto) ann(onae) Afr(icae) pr(ovinciae).

64. CIL XII, 2407 = ILCV 3283 (Vicus Augusti, Narbonensis; undated)

Hic requiescit in / pace bonae memoriae / Teoptecunde, qui / vixit annos nume/ro X. obiit in Chr(ist)o / VI K(a)l(endas) Decem(b)r(e)s no/vies pos(t) con(s)o(latum) / Iohannis v(iri) c(larissimi) VSS.

65. ICUR VI, 17086 = ILCV 3362 (Roma; AD 401-500)

Maurentius Maurentiae / f(i)d(eli), que vixit annis V menses / XI die(bu)s duo(bus), digna inter san/ctos. Deus iussit in pace fi(eri).

66. ICUR I, 1799 = ILCV 1487 (Roma; AD 351-400)

Zosimo q(ui) vixit ann(os) / V m(enses) VIII d(ies) XIII neof(yto) in Chr(isto). / Donatus p(ater) f(ecit) b(ene) m(erenti) / et Iusta m(ater).

67. CIL V, 6271 = ILCV 1502 (Mediolanum, Regio XI; AD 301-500)

Silvino neofito / qui vixit in saeculo ann(os) / XI mens(es) V dies X. / Virilianus et La(m)padius / alumno suo innocentia / memoria(m) posuerunt.

68. AE 1975, 120 (Roma; AD 301-400)

Const[an]t[ius et] Abundan/tia Asel[licae f(iliae) c]arissi(m)ae neofit(ae) / ONNA[---]SSECSID annos / VIII et m(e)n(ses) II[--- depon]ita die Non(arum) Sept(embrium) in pace.

69. CIL XI, 2551 = ILCV 1334 (Clusium, Regio VII; AD 343-376)

Aurelius Melitius / infans Cristaeanus, / fidelis peregrinus hic / positus est, qui vixit / annis IIII die(bu)s duo(bus), qui / defunctus est diae / Saturni pascae noctis / ipsius pervaigilatio(ne) ora/tione quinta vita privatus / est, et sepultus diae Solis / VI Kal(endas) April(es) p(ater) p(osuit) f(ilio) k(arissimo).

70. CIL XIII, 500 = ILCV 1475 (Eliumberrum, Aquitania; AD 301-600)

Hic ad inno/centem et pere/grinum / Ursinicum / an(norum) VIII m(ensium) II d(ierum) X. //
Chr(isti) / serv(u)s.

71. AE 1928, 35 (Hippo Regius, Africa Proconsularis; AD 587-602)

T(h)eodosius / fidelis hic qui/escit, peregrinu(s) / patriq(ue) relinqu / doloris nomine, / funus ann(os) X / vixi(t). Mauricio imp(erante) / Id(ib)us Dec(em)b(ribus) ind(ictione) / sexta quieb(it).

72. AE 1975, 368 (Urvinum Mataurense, Regio VI; AD 301-500)

Cara mihi genita, mea / Carice hic. pius infas. / Annis vixi sex totidemque / et mensibus octo.
/ Reddita bis ternis post / hos aptata diebus. / Infernas pia sancta te/net sapientia sedes, / contraque maestorum / quae mersa est vota parentu(m), / erigitur titulo. Lectori / scripta repone. / Pictius Ib(e)r et Ianuaria fil(iae).

73. ICUR V, 15360 = ILCV 4650 (Roma; AD 191-225)

A(ulus) Egrilius / Bottus / Philades/potus dul/cissimus / et pientis/simus. Sui / parentes / fecerunt.
/ Vixit an(nos) / VIII d(ies) XL / m(enses) sex // Chr(isti) Ie(su).

74. ICUR IX, 23949 (Roma; AD 291-225)

Floridi filiae dulci / pientissime, que vixit / annis III me(nsibus) IIII di(ebus) XXI.

75. Galsterer 2010, 756 (Colonia Claudia Ara Agrippinensis, Germania Inferior; AD 401-600)

Concordia hic iac[et] / pia paren(t)ib(us), vixi[t] / annum semis. Inno/cens in caelis habetur.

76. ICUR VI, 15900 = ILCV 3358 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Cleme(n)tianeti bene merenti parentes fecerunt, / que vixit annus n(umero) VI mesis VI dies
VIII. In pace cum santus.

77. ILCV 2178 = Galsterer 2010, 764 (Colonia Claudia Ara Agrippinensis, Germania Inferior; AD 501-600)

Si quis dignatu[r] / rescire meo no[men], / Rusufula dicor [q]/ui vix(it) annis / IIII et me(nsibus)
XI, / sociata m(artyribu)s.

78. Lambert 2004, 21 (Nola, Regio I; undated)

Paula unicum parentum sacra d(omi)ni famula in aula / hic sibi perpetuam elegit habere domum bicinisque iacet gaudens altaribus hospita Felicis posita martiris in gremio, qu(a) vixit ann(os)
VI d(e)p(ositio) [eius] / [d(e)p(osita) est] sub d(ie) XII K(a)l(endas) Novembris p(ost)
c(onsulatum) Basili.

79. ICUR III, 7768d (Roma; AD 301-350)

Dig[na] dulcis bo/na quies subito obita / est, an(nis) V men(sibus) VIIII / diebus XVII, te in pace.

80. ICUR VIII, 22684 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Vere filiae dulcissime / inreparabilii, ouae vi/xit ann(is) II m(ensibus) X dieb(us) XIII. / D(e) f(uncta) IIII N(onas) Oct(obres) // in / pa/ce.

81. ILCV 191 = AE 1966, 66 (Roma; AD 201-300)

D(is) M(anibus). // L(ucio) Tettio Nonio / Caecilio Lysiae / c(larissimo) p(uero) ineanti dul/
cissimo paren(tes), / indic(ne) ac cru(deliter) a De(o) sublatum nam non amplius licuit ei vivere // nisi ann(is) duobus men(sibus) VIIII die(bus) XVIII. / L(ucius) Tet(ius) Non(ius) Rufus pater et Ceci[lia].

82. ICUR III, 9155 = ILCV 3354 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Severo filio dul/cissimo Laurentius / pater bene merenti, qui bi/xit ann(os) IIII me(nses) VII dies V, / accersitus ab angelis VII Idus Ianua(rias).

83. RICG 1, 67 = AE 1936, 130 (Augusta Treverorum, Belgica; AD 371-500)

[Hic quie]scit Vi/[talis in] pace fi/[delis], qui vixit / [annos] III minus / [die]s XXXVIII. Nutri/[c] ionis pro caritate titu/lum posuerunt.

84. CIL VI, 35790 = ICUR VII, 17921 (Roma; AD 391-425)

Marcella vixit annis VIII / mensibus duobus. Fecit / pater (e)t avus eiliae bene / merenti.

85. ICUR IV, 11935 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Mater et mam(m)a fecit d(e)p(osito) / filio suo dulcis(s)imo viix(it), / qui bixit anno I et Calendas Febr(uar)i(as) / me(n)se(bu)s IIII. Laurenti in pace.

86. ICUR I, 1760 = ILCV 2266d (Roma; AD 351-400)

Pater dolens filio Severo / dulcissimo, qui vixit / ann(os) duo m(enses) XI et die[s ---] / te in pace.

87. CIL V, 1686 = ILCV 3361 (Aquileia, Regio X; AD 301-400)

Maximus et Masc(lina Maxentiae / filiae animae / innocentia titu/lu(m) posuerunt, / qui vixit annis / III me(nsibus) VI dies XIII, / qui est accepta / ad spirita(m) san/cta(m). Parentis / ex dolentiae / posuerunt fil/iae inopiae.

88. ICUR 8, 22557 = ILCV 4172 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Parentes dolentes filiabus / sororibus, Maxime que vixit / annis XI me(n)se(bu)s X die(bus) XXVIII, Ma/ximine vixit annis V diebus / XVI, b(ene) m(erentibus) in pace.

89. CIL VI, 20462 = ILCV 3402 (Roma; AD 101-300)

D(is) M(anibus). / Iuliae C(ai) fil(iae) / Felicitati, / spirito dulcissimo / defuncto acervo, / quae vixit anno uno / mensibus XI dieb(us) tribus. / Fecerunt Iuli Verna / et Felicitas parentes / similiter acervi et / infeliciissimi.

90. ILCV 3590a = RICG 1, 36 (Augusta Treverorum, Belgica; undated)

Marus ic quiescit in / pace, qui vixit an(nos) IIII me(nses) III / die(s) XV. Patris pientissi/mi titulum pos[u]/erun[t].

91. ICUR VIII, 22983 = ILCV 3395a (Ficulea, Regio I; AD 301-500)

Sexto Acerrae Lupo / dulcissimo fi/lio, qui vixit ann/is VII mens(ibus) VIII. / Urbanus et Ius/tina parentes / amantissimi.

92. RICG 1, 53 (Augusta Treverorum, Belgica; undated)

[Hic in] pace q[ui]escit / [---]ce Revoca[tus, q]/[ui vix]it ann(os) V et [---] / [---] patris car[is]/ [simi tit]ulum posu/[e]runt.

93. CIL XIII, 1655 = ILCV 3488 (Asa Paulini, Lugdunensis; undated)

Germine sublimi, Proba nomine, mente provata, / quae subito rapta est, hic tumulata iacet. / In qua q(ui)dquit habent cunctorum vota parentum / contulerat tribuens omnia pulchra D(eu)s. / Hinc mestus pater est, aviae matriq(u)e perennis / [tris]titia, heu facinus causa, perit pietas. / Accipe qui lacr(i)mis perfundis iugeter ora: / Mors nihil est, vitam respice perpetuam. / Quae vixit atnis V et minsi(bu)s VIII. / Obiit s(ub) d(ie) III Id(u)s Octubris Paulino v(iro) k(larissimo) / co(n)s(ule).

94. CIL V, 7409 = ILCV 4193 (Dertona, Regio IX; AD 301-600)

[Hoc tumulo(?)] / [te]gitiur Saev[erinus] / [---]am[---] / [inno]centi[ssimus] / infa(n)s, qu[i] vix(it)] / ann(os) VIII m(enses) [---] / d(ies) XVIII que[m ---] / tulit inpulit [---] / acervitas. Sae[verinus] / pater et Dzidzia / mate[r mi]serabi/lis. (h)e[u(?)] cru]delis ne/fa[rius(?)] [---] q(ue) suo / [---]nerent.

95. AE 1975, 124 (Roma; AD 351-400)

Refrigerius qui bixit annos V mensis VIII / [et] dies V, qui per elegantia(m) et sapientia(m) sua(m) parent/[i]bus suis remisit dolore perpetuo et coe/bit in pace.

96. CIL X, 4510 = ILCV 4183 (Casilinum, Regio I; AD 563)

Hic requiescit / in somn(i)um pacis / Paulinus innocis, / qui vixit annus duo(s) / et mensis II, quius / rememoratio dolum / parentibus demisit. / Depositus est IIII / Nonas Novembbris ind(ictione) / XII p(ost) c(onsulatum) Basili v(iri) c(larissimi) anno / XXII

97. CIL VI, 10703 = ICUR II, 4229 (Roma; AD 301-500)

Dom(us) aeternal(is). / Ael(ius) Felicianus Aeli(ae) / Romane filiae pater / non merenti feci / super tale clavum, / q(u)e mi reliquisti / solaq(u)e me desola(vi)s/ti. Vale virgo dulcis(sima) / q(uae) v(ixit) a(nnos) VI m(enses) III d(ies) V / bene quiescitae.

98. CIL VI, 11511 = ILCV 3887 (Roma; undated)

D(is) M(anibus). Pater domino / filio Amantio caro dul/cissimo, cuius affectus et blandities / et caritas qui mi dolorem et / luctum reliquit unicus / in diem vite meae, / qui vix(it) an(nos) VI m(enses) II d(ies) XV, mor(tuus) / hor(a) noct(is) X.

99. ICUR V, 14392 (Roma; AD 326-375)

Laurent[ia] in (p)ace, quae/e vixit a[nno]s VI et dies XL, / que par[en]tibus suis cordol[ium] misit.

ABREVIATIONS

AE	L'Année Épigraphique , Paris: Presses Universitaires de France.
CIL	Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum , Berlin: Berlin-Brandenburgische Akademie der Wissenschaften.
HEP	Hispania Epigraphica , Madrid: Universidad Complutense.
ICUR	Inscriptiones christianaes urbis Romae , nova series, Roma: Pontificium Institutum Archaeologiae Christianae.
ILCV	Inscriptiones Latinae Christianae Veteres , Berlin: Weidmann.
RICG	Recueil des Inscriptions Chrétaines de la Gaule , Paris: CNRS.

BIBLIOGRAFÍA

- Bakke, O. M. 2005. When Children Became People: The Birth of Childhood in Early Christianity. Minneapolis: Fortress Press.
- Betsworth, S. 2015. Children in Early Christian Narratives. New York: Bloomsbury Publishing.
- Bradley, K.R. 1991. Discovering the Roman Family: Studies in Roman Social History. Oxford-New York: Oxford University Press.
- Carlsen, J. 2020. The Epithets of the Epitaphs from the Imperial Burial Grounds at Carthage. In Aounallah, S. and Mastino, A. (Ed.), L'epigrafia del Nord Africa: Novità, riletture, nuove sintesi, 469-478. Faenza: Fratelli Lega.
- Carroll, M. 2006. Spirits of the Dead: Roman Funerary Commemorations in Western Europe. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Carroll, M. 2011 a. Infant Death and Burial in Roman Italy, Journal of Roman Archaeology 24, 99-120.
- Carroll, M. 2011b. Memoria and damnatio memoriae: Preserving and Erasing Identities in Roman Funerary Commemoration. In Carroll, M. and Rempel, J. (Ed.), Living through the Dead: Burial and Commemoration in the Classical World, 65-90. Oxford: Oxbow Books.
- Carroll, M. 2018. Infancy and Earliest Childhood in the Roman World: 'A Fragment of Time'. Oxford: Oxford University Press.

- Curchin, L.A. 1982. Familial Epithets in the Epigraphy of Roman Spain. Cahiers des Études Anciennes 14, 179-182.
- Díaz López, L. 2015. Vxor merens: La consideración de la mujer en la epigrafía funeraria de la Hispania Citerior. Cuadernos de Arqueología de la Universidad de Navarra 23, 49-95.
- Dresken-Weiland, J. 2021. Ideas of the Afterlife in Christian Grave Inscriptions and their Context in Contemporaneous Christian Sepulchral Culture in Rome. In Vos, N.K. y Geljon, A.C. (Ed.), Rituals in Early Christianity: New Perspectives on Tradition and Transformation, 153-174. Vigiliae Christianae supplement 164. Leiden: Brill.
- Edmondson, J. 2014. Roman Family History. In Bruun, C. and Edmondson, J. (Ed.), The Oxford Handbook of Roman Epigraphy, 559-581. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Fernández Corral, M. 2021. The Commemoration of Children in the Funerary Epigraphy of the Conventus Cluniensis (Hispania Citerior). Mouseion 18, 285-299. <http://www.utpjournals.press/doi/full/10.3138/mous.18.2.005>
- Foxhall Forbes, H. 2020. The Theology of the Afterlife in the Early Middle Ages, c. 400 – c. 1100. In Pollard, R.M. (Ed.), Imagining the Medieval Afterlife. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.
- Galsterer, B. and Galsterer, H. 2010. Die römischen Steininschriften aus Köln, 2nd ed. Mainz and Rhein: Philipp von Zabern.
- Handley, M.A. 2003. Death, Society and Culture: Inscriptions and Epitaphs in Gaul and Spain, AD 300-750. Oxford: Archeopress.
- Hope, V. and Huskinson, J. 2011. Memory and Mourning: Studies on Roman Death. Oxford: Oxbow Books.
- Horn, C.B. y Martens, J.W. (Ed.), 2009. Let the Little Children Come to Me: Childhood and Children in Early Christianity. Washington D.C: The Catholic University Press.
- Horn, C.B. y Phenix, R.R. (Ed.), 2009. Children in Late Antique Christianity. Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck.
- Hoyo, J. del 2016. Fórmulas singulares en la epigrafía cristiana de la Bética occidental. In Carbonell Manils, J. and Gimeno Pascual, H. (Ed.), A Baete ad flumen Anam: Cultura epigráfica en la Bética Occidental y territorios fronterizos: Homenaje al profesor José Luis Moralejo Álvarez, 51-66. Alcalá de Henares: Universidad de Alcalá de Henares.
- Huskinson, J. 1996. Roman children's sarcophagi: Their decoration and its social significance. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Jastrzebowska, E. 1989. Les sarcophages chrétiens d'enfants à Rome au IVe siècle. MEFRA 101, 783-804.
- King, M. 2000. Commemoration of Infants on Roman Funerary Inscriptions. In Oliver, G. (Ed.), The Epigraphy of Death: Studies in the History and Society of Greece and Rome, 117-154. Liverpool: Liverpool University Press.
- Kitat, M. 2021. Early Christian Fetal Burials in the Egyptian Western Desert in the Midst of Magic and Inhumation. Mitteilungen zur christlichen Archäologie 27, 95-110.
- Knapp, R.C. 1992. Latin Inscriptions from Central Spain. Berkeley-Los Angeles: University of California Press.
- Knott, B.I. 1956. The Christian 'Special Language' in the Inscriptions. Vigiliae Christianae 10, 65-79.
- Kreiger, J.R. 2013. Remembering Children in the Roman Catacombs. In Evans Grubbs, J. y Parkin, T. (Ed.), The Oxford Handbook of Childhood and Education in the Classical World, 600-624. Oxford-New York: Oxford University Press.

- Lambert, C. 2004. Pagine di pietra: Manuale di epigrafia latino-campana tardoantica e medievale. Fisciano: Cooperativa Universitaria Editrice Salernitana.
- Leyerle, B. 2013. Children and 'the Child' in Early Christianity, In Evans Grubbs, J. and Parkin, T. (Ed.), The Oxford Handbook of Childhood and Education in the Classical World, 559-579. Oxford and New York: Oxford University Press.
- MacDonald, M.Y. 2014. The Power of Children: The Construction of Christian Families in the Greco-Roman World. Waco: Baylor University Press.
- Mander, J. 2012. Portraits of Children on Roman Funerary Monuments. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.
- McWilliam, J. 2001. Children among the Dead: The Influence of Urban Life on the Commemoration of Children on Tombstone Inscriptions. In Dixon, S. (Ed.), Childhood, Class, and Kin in the Roman World, 74-98. London-New York: Routledge.
- Nathan, G. 2000. The Family in Late Antiquity: The Rise of Christianity and the Endurance of Tradition. London-New York: Routledge.
- Nathan, G. 2021. Looking for Children in Late Antiquity. In Beaumont, L.A., Dillon, M. and Harrington, N. (Ed.), Children in Antiquity: Perspectives and Experiences of Childhood in the Ancient Mediterranean, 134-149. London-New York: Routledge.
- Osiek, C. (Ed.) 2003. Early Christian Families in Context: An Interdisciplinary Dialogue. Grand Rapids: Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing.
- Pereira, C. and Albuquerque, P. 2018. Inumavações infantis em ânfora na península ibérica durante a época romana: a prática e o rito, Spal 27, 89 118. <http://dx.doi.org/10.12795/spal.2018i27.04>
- Pietri, Ch. 1997. La mort en Occident dans l'épigraphie latine : De l'épigraphie païenne à l'épitaphe chrétienne, 3e-6e siècles. En Christiana res publica. Éléments d'une enquête sur le christianisme antique, 1519-1542. Rome: École Française de Rome (Publications de l'École française de Rome 234). https://www.persee.fr/doc/efr_0223-5099_1997_mon_234_1_5828
- Rawson, B. 2003a. Children and Childhood in Roman Italy. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Rawson, B. 2003b. Death, Burial, and Commemoration of Children in Roman Italy. In Osiek, C. (Ed.), Early Christian Families in Context: An Interdisciplinary Dialogue, 277-297. Grand Rapids: Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing.
- Saller, R.P. 1987. Men's age at marriage and its consequences in the Roman family. Classical Philology 82, 21-34. <http://dx.doi.org/10.1086/367019>
- Shaw, B.D. 1987. The age of Roman girls at marriage: Some reconsiderations. Journal of Roman Studies 77, 30-46. <https://doi.org/10.1017/S0075435800008492>
- Sigismund Nielsen, H. 1997. Interpreting Epithets in Epitaphs. In Rawson, B. and Weaver, P. (Ed.), The Roman Family in Italy: Status, Sentiment, Space, 169-205. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Sigismund Nielsen, H. 2001, The Value of Epithets in Pagan and Christian Epitaphs from Rome. In Dixon, S. (Ed.), Childhood, Class and Kin in the Roman World, 165-177. London-New York: Routledge.
- Sigismund Nielsen, H. 2013. Slave and Lower-Class Children. In Evans Grubbs, J. and Parkin, T. (Ed.), The Oxford Handbook of Childhood and Education in the Classical World, 286-301. Oxford-New York: Oxford University Press.
- Sigismund Nielsen, H. 2019. Some Observations on the Commemoration of Pagan and Christian Infants in the City of Rome. Mouseion 16, Supplement 1, 19-35. <https://muse.jhu.edu/article/720388/pdf>
- Stawoska-Jundziłł, B. 2003. Mamma, tata and papas in Christian Latin Inscriptions from Rome of III-VI Centuries. Vox Patrum 42, 487-500. <https://doi.org/10.31743/vp.7173>

- Strange, W.A. 1996. Children, Church and Family in Early Christianity. Journal of Beliefs and Values 17, 36-40.
- Studer-Karlen, M. 2008. Quelques réflexions sur les sarcophages d'enfants (fin 3e siècle – début 5e siècle. In Gusi i Jener, F., Muriel S., and Olària, C. (Ed.), Nasciturus, infans, puerulus vobis mater terra: La muerte en la infancia. (Serie de Prehistòria y Arqueología), 551-574. Castelló: Diputación de Castelló.
- Wang, X. 2019. John Chrysostom on the Premature Death of Children and Parental Grief. Journal of Early Christian Studies 27, 443-463.

