

APPENDIX B: THE NATIVE SPEAKER MODELS

Model A

One day a young couple were checking out restaurant information on the Internet. They found a nice restaurant that had tables next to large windows overlooking the ocean. The view looked great, so they decided to go. Two hours later, they arrived at the restaurant and found that all the window tables were taken. A waiter showed them a table in an isolated corner that had no view at all. They were very shocked and disappointed.

Model B

Last Sunday my husband and I were trying to find a nice restaurant where we could get a good view of the sea. The reason was that it was our 10th anniversary on Sunday. After checking the Internet for about an hour, we found an ideal restaurant.

Two hours later, we arrived there, but found it was so crowded that we couldn't get a table by the window. Disappointed, we decided not to eat there and went back home.

Taken from Hanaoka (2006).

Used with permission.